THE NEW BOY IN SCHOOL.

If a cat should chance into a strange garret.

They say it feels awkward and quite out of place.

With sensations the same as Grumble's case.

Around him he sees an expanse of strange faces.

Sitting him up with an eye-searching gaze.

And knows that he's being slowly dissected.

All the way from his feet clear up to his head.

Just three seats away there sits the school boy.

With a bullet-head and a jaunty snub nose.

His mooring grin says: "I'll see you at recess."

While, leaning a forced back and a volley of blows.

The new boy darts back a look of defiance.

To the round-headed bully's insolent leer.

For the instant knows it won't do for a moment.

To let the chap think he's acquainted with fear.

In the school he came from perhaps he was better.

In sports, or in "tricks" that are played.

But in the new school he's a little bit small.

And he's a little bit of a "new boy."

And he's a little bit of a "new boy."

warm words of thanks from Mr. Carroll that I drove into the stable on my return to Hyde Park. My wife was with me; she said that she wanted to hear what Mr. Carroll had to say.

"That's too bad," said my wife, and I agreed with her. But I told the hostess to unharness the new horse and to put him into a stall, and he set at work to do it.

"Good-looking horse," he said, as he unharnessed the horse, and he looked at me with a look that said he was just as good as he looks.

"Did you get some spectacles to go with the horse? He looks a little better later, looking at me with a look that said he was just as good as he looks.

"I knew at once that Deacon Smith's horse was blind, and I was tremendously

amused."

"Of course," said the hostess, "but the horse is blind, and I was tremendously

amused."

"That's all right," said the hostess, "but

KENTUCKY STATE NEWS.

ROBERT ARMITAGE and Miss Kate

Witty were married in a buggy in front of a lively stable, at Hopkinsville, the evening. The lady was visiting relatives. Applauding her buggy riding, proposed and obtaining a license they were married.

JOHN WILLIAMS, of Hopkinsville, a brakeman on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, fell from the top of a moving freight train at Guthrie, and had both legs broken below the knees.

The shattered bones protruded through the flesh. One leg will have to be amputated.

Mrs. SHERMAN, a wealthy and prominent brewer of Frankfort, dropped dead of apoplexy the other morning. He was at one time a councilman and was very popular.

SIX years since some of the ladies of Frankfort formed an organization for the purpose of erecting a monument over the graves of the Confederate dead in the cemetery there. Mrs. R. M. Aldridge was elected president, and the following ladies vice-presidents: Mrs.

W. L. Jett, Mrs. E. L. Samuel, Mrs.

Ellen Duvall, Mrs. J. Stoddard Johnston,

Mrs. Joe Ledman, Mrs. Trimble and

Mrs. Laura C. Cook. A certain sum of money has been raised, but not sufficient to pay for the monument, which has been ordered and is now being constructed in Italy at a cost of $5,000.

C. C. WATKINS, postmaster at Owensboro, has resigned to accept a position as teller in a bank.

JOHN DAVIS was convicted of the murder of Marshal John T. Hubbard.

In 1887 John Hubbard, Lawson Goodin and Leckwith, while drunk, had a quarrel with the marshal and a fusillade followed, in which Hubbard emptied his pistol. The three assailants then ran upon him, beat him down and shot him through the head and chest.

A W. T. CUMBER, of Texas, obtained a judgment in the federal court at Louisville, a few days ago, for $10,000 damages. The case was against a near Columbia, this state, and for some reason was unpopular. One night twenty of his neighbors came to his house to carry out a threat previously made to kill him. He met them with a shotgun and killed Tarleton Bradshaw, one of their number. Soon after he was brought back upon an indictment for the murder of Bradshaw, and he was acquitted. His trial cost him heavily, and at one time he was almost driven to despair. He is now a well-to-do citizen near Columbia.

JOHN L. LAY, an ex-legislator of Graves county, died at Paducah the other night, at the home of his sister.

He was 84 years old. Several years ago he received a fatal fall and death resulted from the effects and drags combined.
